IN PUTNAM COUNTY

John Zeiner To Head United Fund

John R. Zeiner a vice president of Central National Bank was elected president of Putnam County United Fund at the annual meeting of directors held last night. He will succeed Clair Williams in this position.

Others elected were Richard Andis, IBM, vice-president, Richard Flynn, treasurer and Winifred Neal, secretary. Jerry Beer of Putnam County Hospital and Jim Poor of Poor & Co. were elected to one year terms on the board of directors, to fill the unexpired terms of Mrs. Eugene Akers and Tom Tappin, both of whom have resigned.

Those who were elected to three-year terms on the board of directors include: Robert Schroer, IBM; David Heavin, Greencastle Manufacturing; Harold Lazotte, Public Service Company of Indiana; Lois Allee, E.H. Collins & Co.; Richard Sunkel, Horace Link & Co.; Howell Bell, Montgomery Ward; Morris Hunter, Hunter, Brush & Gossard; Ken Decker, P.R. Mallory Co.; Mildred Sandy, Cloverdale and Evelyn Snodgrass, Roachdale.

The slate was presented by a nominating committee composed of James Poor, chairman, Ben Cannon and Richard Sunkel.

Since the 1973 United Fund drive had exceeded its goal, an allocations committee, headed by James N. Cook, reviewed the member agencies and recommended that seven of these be granted additional funds to compensate for cuts which had been made from original requests.

The following additional amounts were allowed by directors in last night's session: U.S.O., $25; Cerebral Palsy, $300; Boy Scouts, $500. Girl Scouts, $250.; Mental

DPU Students Off To Greece For Semester

Thirty-four DePauw University students plus one from Purdue University left the campus to begin a special one-semester academic program in Athens, Greece.

Accompanied by Dr. Marvin Swanson, assistant dean for international studies, the group flew to Detroit and then on to Salonika, Greece, via Frankfurt, Germany.

On arrival in Greece, the group will begin a four-day orientation session at the American Farm School near Thessalonika. The American-supported school is providing a series of lectures, seminars, and field trips on the Mediterranean world, Greek history and culture, and rural life in the Mediterranean.

On Jan. 30 the student contingent leaves Salonika for Athens to begin another four-day orientation period. This block of time will familiarize students with Greek during daily language sessions, offer formal lectures on contemporary problems and issues in the Mediterranean, and provide formal and informal occasions for tours.

Classes will begin Feb. 4 at the Hellenic-American Union in Athens. Students are required to register for two of three topic courses dealing with contemporary governments of the Mediterranean area and the ethnic heritage of Mediterranean sociology. Two more optional courses may be chosen.

Dr. and Mrs. James Rambo are resident directors of the program in Athens, remaining there after directing a similar DePauw program the first semester. Dr. Swanson will return to the campus in three weeks after completing his visit to DePauw international centers and holding conversations with personnel at host institutions.

Thirty-one more DePauw students left for a one-semester program in Freiburg, Germany, last week. These students began classes at the German university Jan. 22.

It's Saturday night and we haven't much to do so we go down the stairs, open the door and find ourselves standing in an entryway that is dark except for stone walls with phosphorescent designs and signs.

It creates the illusion of being inside a cold cave with, perhaps, the remnants of small fires left burning. We hear voices--talking and laughing--so we walk on a little further. Looking up we see two parachutes sort of floating in the air and on the wall is a huge rainbow.

Glancing down we see that there are names etched with crayon on the concrete floor.

The voices are all around us now and they belong to boys and girls ranging in age from about 13 to maybe 17 or 18. They're sitting at tables

Mexican Flu Hits Schools

First it was snow then more snow and now it's the Mexican flu that is playing havoc with attendance at local schools.

The schools have been hit hard with as many as 350 pupils or 15 percent out at the peak this week, Greencastle schools superintendent Frank Ross reported.

"The number of absentees varies from day to day and the children are not out for too long," Ross added.

"This is the heaviest number of absentees since I've been in Greencastle," Ross said. "It's about twice normal."

"The faculty hasn't been hit too hard but the illness has started with the oldest, the high school students, and worked down.

"The Junior High felt a little of it this week and its starting to crop up in the elementary schools," he said and noted that absentees are expected to have peaked this week.

Reports are that doctors have tagged the illness Mexican flu.

Schroeder Reveals Collection Facts

While many people have not taken the idea of collecting old newspaper seriously--even when air and land pollution are a bad problem and the energy crisis is even worse--letting your neighbor do it won't get the job done, says Chuck Schroeder, director at the Putnam County Learning Center.

Here are some facts Schroeder has concerning newsprint: It takes about 17 pine trees to make one ton of unbleached pulp. Other natural resources required to make this pulp are: 275 pounds of sulphur, 350 pounds of limestone, 60,000 gallons of water, 9000 pounds of steam and 225 kilowatts of electricity.

By recycling, these natural resources can be saved and an effective fighter against the energy crisis, oren cellulose insulation, can be produced.

One ton of old newspapers converted into cellulose insulation can conserve up to 1100 gallons of fuel oil, 15,600 cubic feet of natural gas or 13 tons of coal annually over the average un-insulated home in Mid-America, according to Schroeder.

While there may be enough fuel for this year, we don't know about next winter.

The Putnam County Learning Center is helping to fight the energy crisis. They are now taking paper and soon will be collecting on a regular basis. Take your paper to them at the National Guard Armory on Arlington Street or call Chuck Schroeder at 653-4400.

Holtmann Says Club Membership Part Of Citizenship

Membership in Kiwanis is a part of total citizenship. Ervan Holtmann, Division Lieutenant-Governor of the service organization, told members of the Greencastle Club at their Thursday luncheon meeting.

"As a Kiwanian, I can better serve God, my nation, my state and my job," Holtmann said.

A resident of Terre Haute and professor in Indiana State University, Holtmann was making his first official visit to the Greencastle Kiwanis Club. He spoke of the many ways Kiwanians can make an impression on the community through their service projects.

The speaker said that membership in Kiwanis gives an individual an opportunity to do things with a group that would be impossible for him to do alone. Also, his associations with others becomes a part of his continuing education. "The more you put into Kiwanis, the more you will get out of it," Holtmann said in conclusion.

Preceding the formal program, past presidents of the Greencastle club were recognized. Heading the list in seniority was Glenn Lyon, who served as club president in 1930. Other past presidents at Thursday's meeting were Herold Ross, Frank DeVaney, John Poor, Howard Youse, Earle Boyd, Charles Carmichael, Arthur Shumaker, Darrell Gooch, Lloyd Cooper, Walter Frye, Keith Monnett, Robert Loring and Bill Marley.

Inducted as a new member of the club was John Bergen, Greencastle postmaster. He was introduced to the club by Edwin Frazier and Earle Boyd served as inducting officer. Bergen became the club's 102nd member.

Visiting as an inter-club delegation from Brazil were Don Carpenter, Archie Hamm, Roy McCullough and Ralph Bolin.

Firemen Called To Bulk Plant

Greencastle firemen were called to the High Point Oil Company bulk plant, 308 East Berry Street, at 10:40 p.m.

They reported there was a small amount of spillage of fuel oil which was washed down with 200 gallons of water from the truck booster tank.

It was the 13th run of the year for the firemen who returned to the station at 11:10 p.m.

Shuee Addresses Premium Acceptance Corporation Meeting

Speaking at the annual meeting of the Premium Acceptance Corporation here, president Charles Shuee said that the corporation is "very proud of the accomplishments" of 1973.

"We're proud of the accomplishments because we have doubled the corporation in just one year's time," Shuee said.

"We have in excess of $400,000 in loans now and partments, he said.

The office is to be open by the first of April.

The group is to also open offices in 16 of the largest Indiana cities with three offices to be opened in the next year.

To insure rapid growth, the board of directors was expanded, Shuee pointed out.

Chairman of the board John J. Dillon chaired the meet.

It was six months before they got together with a few of the adults at the church and decided to try to make their dream become a reality.

These adults who lent a helping hand were Dick Reed, Mrs. Kenneth Torr and the Rev. Morris Finch.

This group of people spent the last half of the summer of 1973 together, cleaning, painting, decorating, and creating a place which would become their "home away from home" from 7:30 to 10:30 each Saturday evening.

The art work within, the rainbow, painting, posters and painted soft drink bottles was designed and done by this original group.

The House of the Rising Son opened last September, under the guidance of a board of directors consisting of three adults and four students--Norman Donaldson, Dick Reed, Mrs. Robert Poor, Jerry and John Torr, Sandra Brush and Sharon

Each evening there is a host, usually accompanied by his wife, whose job is to just "be there." Also present most evenings is Janean Smith, a teacher at Miller Elementary School, who acts as a counselor whenever any of the students need someone to talk to.

Everyone is welcome to come to the House of the Rising Son--and be sure to sign the floor. You don't need to be a member of the church.

The House of the Rising Son is open from 7:30 to 10:30 each Saturday night unless there is a home game at the high school, in which case it is open following the game. You've got the time, the place is the basement of the First Christian Church, and the price is nothing. The program for tomorrow will be sort of a talent show.

The air is fresh and clean—there's no smoke; the atmosphere is relaxed and friendly; the mood is light-hearted and carefree.

Investigating a little more, we find still another room with a ping pong table.

Where are we? What is this place that offers such diversity?

Questioning those around us we find we have entered The House of the Rising Son, a coffee house for students—created by the students, for the students and run, for the most part, by the students.

The coffee house started as a dream of a group of young people at the First Christian Church, which provides the rooms for it. This original group included Sharon Stamper, Jerry Torr, John Torr, Mark Hampton, Sandy Brush, Rex Baker, George Stevens and Kim VanZwoll.

There are only two rules for those attending—no alcoholic beverages and no smoking—and the students themselves are in charge of discipline. They are also responsible for arranging for entertainment each night. These programs range anywhere from folk singers to sensitivity programs. Mrs. Longden Speaks At Meet

"Hoosier Folklore in Music" was the subject of a presentation by Mrs. Hazel Longden, when she spoke to the Putnam County Historical Society meeting in Torr's Restaurant Wednesday evening.

Describing music as sound waves with ears to hear it, Mrs. Longden said that some of the earliest music of the state must have been that of the Indian tribes here. Later various nationalities moved into Indiana and each made a contribution to the music field.

Music is sometimes written to honor cities, but the reverse was true for the first capital of Indiana, according to Mrs. Longden. A pastoral elegy of a Greek shepherd boy was entitled "Corydon" and this name was appropriated by the city which for a time served as the Hoosier capitol.

A Jefferson County resident, William Hoyt, is credited with invention of the steam calliope. Listening to river boat whistles, he decided to line them up in a scale and his instrument developed. It was so large and cumbersome that when the inventor took it to New York, it had to be hauled on a railroad car. In 1856, he played the calliope in Indianapolis.

Indiana was better at importing singers than producing them. Mrs. Longden said. Among the greatest to come here in the earlier days was Jenny Lind, the Swedish Nightingale, brought to this country by the great showman P.T. Barnum.

Among Hoosier song writers who put Indiana on the musical map, Mrs. Longden listed Hoagy Carmichael, Cole Porter and Paul Dresser. Others who earned their right to fame were Harry Von Tiltzer and his brother, Albert.

Harry Von Tiltzer left his stamp on the musical world by writing some 150 songs which were great hits.

For Master Plan

Commission Votes Unanimously

The Putnam County Plan Commission voted unanimously Wednesday night to recommend a master plan and subdivision ordinance for the county to the Board of Commissioners for their approval.

The vote closed a meeting of over three hours in the old third floor courtroom of the Putnam County courthouse, the majority of which was spent in a public hearing of the plan and ordinance.

After the hearing had been closed by Jack Torr, commission president for the purpose of having the commission reach a decision concerning the plan and ordinance, the board still entertained numerous comments and questions from the crowd gathered in the courtroom, which early in the hearing numbered close to 80.

These comments differed little from the many that were tossed about during the course of the hearing itself, yet were still received with the patience that has come to typify the commission in the face of the public criticism, both positive and negative, that it has encountered in the months of formulating the plan and ordinance.

Finally, shortly after 10:30, some three hours after the meeting had been opened, board member Fred Mann moved to recommend the plan and ordinance to the commissioners. Max Cooperider, vice-president of the commission, seconded the motion.

After ten minutes of discussion the vote was taken, with the nine "ayes" quickly voiced. Torr then explained to the remnant of the gathering, which had thinned to some forty observers, that the plan and ordinance would now go to the county commissioners, to be made law or rejected in their February 4 meeting, and the meeting was adjourned.

The meeting opened at 7:30 with the usual introduction of the plan commission and the explanation to those in the audience of why the hearing had been called. Law requires that such a hearing take place before the plan and ordinance, which would affect the people of the county, are voted upon by the commission and commissioners.

Following the preliminaries, copies of the master plan were distributed throughout the courtroom, and Paul Jackson, commission secretary, read the plan aloud.

There were few comments concerning the plan, so Torr went on to read the definition of a subdivision contained within the ordinance. This reading brought questions concerning the minimum lot sizes for exceptions to the ordinance, which is set by the definition at "a minimum frontage of 300 feet on a public highway, containing a minimum area of 130,000 square feet, and having a maximum width to depth ratio of 1.0 to 2.5."

The questions expressed concern for the small land owner or potential owner who wanted to sell or buy one or two tracts of land not as large as the roughly 2.9 acres set by the definition. Would that person be forced to engage in a subdividing project?

The questions were referred to the modifications clause in the ordinance, which allows for modified treatment where "extraordinary hardships may result from strict compliance with these regulations", as in the case of a small land divider. Questions following on the heels of this discussion lead to the topic of zoning, with which the commission repeatedly advised the audience that it was not dealing in the subdivision ordinance. However, Torr explained, many of the problems raised by these questions could be solved by zoning.

The subdivision ordinance was explained as a step on the way to the solution of the problems, yet as only a step it must be made up of compromising positions to a great extent, as in the case of determining the minimum lot sizes for exceptions to the ordinance.

After continued discussion, the ordinance was read and explained in its entirety by Torr and Alan Stanley, county surveyor.

A few questions were directed to the particulars, and then two queries aimed at the entire ordinance and approval process.

The first of these sought to know why the ordinance was not put to a vote of all the people, as the measure of a referendum would do. The speaker suggested that this would be the democratic way to approach the matter, recalling that the last referendum in the county concerned the building of the Putnam County Hospital, some fifty years ago.

The second question had to do with existing problems at the time the ordinance becomes law, if it does so. This question related to earlier remarks about developers who are in the process of making a subdivision at the present time. Will they be required to back-track and fulfill all the steps demanded of a subdivider by the new ordinance?

The commission decided to make a policy concerning these cases, rather than incorporate some section in the ordinance itself, referring again to the modifications clause as taking them into account.

With the conclusion of this discussion, the hearing was, supposedly closed, and commission deliberation on the fate of the ordinance begun.

"HOME OF BROASTED CHICKEN" Broasted IS Better!

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Beth's case is a superb illustration of how shock treatment brings a psychotic patient back into brief contact with reality. But it also shows that verbal diagnosis is then needed during her lucid intervals. Note what triggers her delusional state.

CASE Z-535: Beth X., aged 22, was a brilliant student at an Eastern Women's College. But she began to lose contact with reality till she ignored her friends, her surroundings and even her personal toilet habits. Sent to a mental sanitarium, she would strip off all her clothes and sit, nude, on a stool in the corner. She would not answer questions or communicate with the doctors and nurses, so they couldn't even try to probe to the core of her problem.

That's where shock treatment is most valuable, for it will temporarily bring the victim back into rapport with her environment.

After Beth responded to shock therapy, she was sent home to her parents, apparently well adjusted and normal.

She would drive the car for her father as he made house calls in his practice.

But one cold winter day, at breakfast, Beth suddenly cried out:

"Mother, brush that fly off of me."

Well there were no flies around for it was midwinter!

But when the girl repeated this abrupt and illogical cry on following days, they grew worried.

Soon, Beth lapsed into a vegetable state where she wouldn't speak.

One of her father's medical colleagues was a talented psychiatrist with an excellent sanitarium, so Beth was sent there.

"Dr. Crane," this psychiatrist told me, "we found that by series of shock treatments, we could return her to her home, apparently fully recovered."

"But within 6 to 9 months, almost with clocklike regularity, she would suddenly exclaim: 'Mother brush that fly off of me.'"

"So her parents would bring her to the sanitarium, where we'd give her shock therapy 3 times per week and within a month or so, she could go back home to serve as chauffeur for her father.

"But our shock treatment is obviously not curative, for she relapses and has been back to our sanitarium for 4 visits already."

PSYCHOSIS VS. NEUROSIS

Beth's case represents a psychosis.

For when she begins to withdraw from reality too far, she alerts her parents with this chronic refrain:

"Mother, brush that fly off of me."

The shock treatment temporarily brings her back to normalcy, but obviously doesn't go to the root of her original trouble.

For shock treatment, much like aspirin for an astigmatic headache, merely masks the basic situation temporarily but doesn't eradicate the cause!

What do you readers think drove Beth into this abnormal state?

How do you think the fly might have triggered her original psychotic state?

When Beth has been restored for 6 months to apparent normalcy by the electrical shock therapy, she might then be cured by hypnosis or lengthy psychoanalysis.

Dr. Sigmund Freud believed that sexual maladjustment is usually the basic cause of mental abnormality.

If so, where does that recurring worry about a "fly" fit into your diagnosis?

And for further fascinating cases, send for my booklet on "Abnormal Psychology," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Stock market triggers blood pressure

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Every time the stock market goes DOWN 10 points, my husband's blood pressure goes UP 30 points. I'm afraid one of these days he's going to drop dead.

He has quite a lot invested in the market, but thank God, not everything. I never look at the stock market reports in the newspaper anymore. And when it comes on the news over the radio, I turn it off. I figure there's nothing I can do about it anyway, so why spoil my day, right?

I've been trying to get my husband to quit following the market so closely for his own good, but he won't listen to me. The minute he walks thru the door I can tell how the market was by looking at his face. He's never had a real heart attack—only a "warning." Don't you think if he got out of the market altogether he'd live longer? PEGGY

DEAR PEGGY: Not if he sold his stock at 40 and it went up to 120! If your husband follows [a] his doctor's advice, and [b] his broker's advice, he could be in good shape for a long time. Don't nag him.

Hospital Guild To Hold General Membership Meeting January 28

The Putnam County Hospital Guild will hold a general membership meeting Monday, Jan. 28, at 10 a.m. The meeting will be held at 112 Northwood Blvd. Awards will be presented for hours of service performed at the local hospital.

The guild was organized on Sept. 25, 1957 with 24 members. This year the guild boasts a membership of 450.

Guild members man the book cart to distribute mail and flowers and to circulate reading matter. They offer general assistance to visitors and to the office at the information desk, serve noon and evening meals and feed patients when necessary.

Some members act as escorts on Saturday morning and supervise the flow of outpatients requiring the services of a surgeon. They also serve as welcome hostesses and guide incoming patients through the hospital process.

Making phone calls to check on the welfare of elderly individuals living alone and sewing stuffed toys for pediatric patients are also some of the services guild members provide.

Dues of all members are one dollar per year. Anyone desiring additional information about becoming a guild member should contact 653-5121, ext. 28 or 29, or 653-3951.

Bidding Quiz

You are the dealer, neither side vulnerable, and open One Diamond. Partner responds Three Diamonds. What would you bid now with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠AQ6 ♥KJ4 ♦KQ732 ♣KJ
2. ♠KJ ♥84 ♦A9863 ♣AQ95
3. ♠J3 ♥K75 ♦AJ92 ♣KQ86
4. ♠AQ8 ♥10 ♦J86542 ♣AK3

1. Four notrump. Partner will normally have 13 to 16 points in high cards, which puts you in the vicinity of the 33 points generally required for twelve tricks. A small slam is therefore virtually certain and, furthermore, a grand slam is possible.

Blackwood is by far the best way of discovering how many tricks you can make. If partner shows two aces by bidding five hearts, you quit at six diamonds. If he shows three aces by bidding five spades, you bid five notrump, calling for kings. If the response to this is six diamonds, you bid seven.

2. Four diamonds. Partner's jump raise is forcing and, by bidding four diamonds, you show no extra values. If partner then bids five diamonds, you pass.

But if partner evinces slam interest by bidding four hearts or spades, you bid five clubs. This cannot be regarded as a particularly strong bid, as you have already limited your resources by bidding four diamonds. Over five clubs, the rest is up to partner.

3. Three notrump. This is not a pleasant rebid, considering the spade weakness, but it offers the best chance for game, and that is the main consideration.

Five diamonds could be a better contract, but there is no sensible way of finding out. If you were to bid four clubs, you would be going past the three notrump level. The 4-4-3-2 distribution strongly suggests notrump, despite the danger in spades. If partner accepts three notrump, the odds strongly favor making it.

4. Four clubs. As you have such fine controls, a slam is possible despite the minimum high-card values. Partner may have something like:

♠72 ♥AJ4 ♦AK93 ♣Q875 and this close-to-minimum three diamond response would produce an excellent chance for six.

If partner's response to four clubs is four diamonds, you are entitled to make still another slam try by bidding four spades. If partner then bids five diamonds, declining your overtures despite two invitations, you would have to respect his wishes and throw in the towel.

Note that Blackwood is not employed here. Learning whether partner has one or two aces does not resolve the question of whether there are twelve tricks.

Was The Whole Scene For Real Or Fool? Ali Says, "He Blew His Cool"

Old fight fans may be arguing for years whether Joe Frazier really got angry at Muhammad Ali and tried to slug him. Or whether it was all an act put on to help promote Monday night's fight or a television show next Saturday afternoon.

Ali himself produced some fodder for the skeptics when, a half-hour after he was rolling around a television studio floor in the grasp of his opponent, he laughed heartily and said:

"There's this fellow down in Waycross, Ga., who will be reading the paper tomorrow morning about what happened here and he will say, 'Maybe I oughta go up and see that fight. I oughta get me a ticket.'"

If it was a publicity stunt, it got out of hand and for a few tense moments the 12-round sequel to the 1971 Fight of the Century at Madison Square Garden was in jeopardy.

Here is what happened:
The American Broadcasting Co. announced that there would be a taping Wednesday of the original $20 million battle between the then two unbeaten for the world heavyweight championship.

The two fighters were brought in as special guests to lend their comments and the whole show, moderated by Howard Cosell, would be aired on ABC's Wide World of Sports next Saturday afternoon.

A half-dozen or so newsmen also were invited.

Things moved along smoothly through the first nine rounds. There were a few insults badgered back and forth-usual-and constant interruptions as each fighter insisted round after round that it was he who was dominating the battle.

Then came the 10th round on the screen.

Ali and Frazier intensified their chatter. Cosell began to show impatience. He tried to keep the fighters' attention on the screen rather than on each other.

"Would you gentlemen please maintain discreet taciturnity," Cosell admonished at one stage.

"Don't tell me to shut up," Ali barked, translating Cosell's prose quickly. "I'm not your boy. You're not my boss. You oughta be slapped."

As the 10th round ground on, the fighters got into a dispute over who absorbed the most punishment.

"I went to the hospital for 10 minutes and you went to the hospital for a month," Ali said.

"Just for a rest," replied Frazier. "In and out."

"For a rest? That shows how dumb you are," snorted Ali.

There was more banter and Ali repeated the charge about hospital tenure, raising Joe's stay this time to two months.

When Joe sought to explain, Ali interrupted, saying, "That's ignorant."

Frazier was on his feet in a flash, towering over Ali, who sat there with a little smirk on his face. Ali's brother, Rachman, also a fighter, jumped to the stage and stood at Ali's right elbow.

"You wanna get in this too?" Joe challenged Rachman.

Before anybody could ring a bell, the two heavyweights came together in a vice-like grip. They wrestled momentarily and fell off the one-foot stage to a concrete floor with a heavy thud.

Ear plugs flew off. Stunned cameramen shuffled backward. Rachman and Frazier's brother, Tom, began tugging at each other on another part of the studio floor. Men moved in to try to break it up.

Cosell himself momentarily was at a loss for words - a minor miracle in itself - but recovered to continue the commentary.

"This seems to be for real," Cosell said. "Ali is probably clowning but Joe is not clowning."

Finally the two were torn apart by Eddie Futch, Frazier's manager; Dr. Ferdie Pacheco of Miami Beach, Fla., the doctor in Ali's corner; and TV director Gene Kilroy.

Frazier, puffing hard and seemingly incensed, grabbed his overcoat and stalked out of the studio, a cordon of friends around him.

Before he left, Ali yelled at him, "I'll see you Monday night." "Be on time," Frazier snapped.

Ali combed his hair, adjusted his jacket and returned to his chair. The show was completed with an empty chair.

"He was mad, I wasn't mad, he blew his cool," Ali said. "Ain't that silly?"

CASTLE AMERICAN

State Road 43 North, Greencastle playing Terre Haute-South at home Friday night, 6:30, then Saturday night the reserve team plays Terre Haute-South, at home, 6:30.

North Putnam will see double action this weekend playing Covington Friday night, there, 6:30; Saturday night hosting Crawfordsville, at home, 6:45.

South Putnam has no varsity basketball matches this weekend.

Greencastle coach, Bob Shelton, expects a close game against Terre Haute South, saying, "south is a fine ball-club, with several outstanding players. South's Smith is probably one of the finest ballplayers in the area. We will be concentrating on blocking, getting good shots, and creating a workable tempo."

GHS is now 10-3, 6-0 overall. North Putnam will go against Covington Friday night, Crawfordsville Saturday night, and varsity coach, Jim Sharp, is expecting good performance, tough competition this weekend.

Sharp noted that "Covington has five seniors, four returning starters, and one guy Dunham is an outstanding senior, who the Cougars will be watching. Covington is a solid outfit."

sville match for North Putnam will be rebounding.

Both games will probably see the Cougars go man-to-man defensively, but Sharp emphasized that play will develop along with the game situation.

Possible starters for North Putnam are Sutherland and Tippin, guards; Brothers, center; Perry and Call, forwards.

North Putnam is now 5-3; conference 0-1.

Favorable Hog Prices Expected For Rest Of '74

Hog producers can expect a continuance of relatively favorable prices during the remainder of 1974, says Purdue University extension economist Robert Schneidau. Schneidau expects hog prices to average near the $40-$41 per hundredweight level; this about equals the 1973 price average. Prices will likely average somewhat higher during the first half of the year than in the last half of 1974.

These prices are considered high enough to offer producers reasonable returns at expected feed ingredient costs of about $2.50 a bushel for corn and $200 a ton for supplement.

During the first half of the year hog supplies likely will continue to run under year

1.44 Million Acres Seeded In Wheat

Indiana farmers seeded 1.44 million acres of winter wheat in the fall of 1973 for harvest in 1974—nearly twice as many as were sown the previous year—according to state-federal agricultural statisticians at Purdue University.

This is the highest winter wheat acreage for Indiana since 1964 and the second highest since 1953. Prospective 1974 winter wheat production is 61.9 million bushels, compared to 24.6 in 1973, the statisticians said.

Nationwide, seeding of winter wheat last fall was 18 per cent greater than that in the fall of 1972. Farmers planted 51.0 million acres to wheat, largest since the 1967 crop when they seeded 53.6 million acres.

The prospective 1974 winter wheat production, at 1.513 million bushels, is a record high and 19 per cent more than the present record 1973 crop.

earlier totals.

However, the long expected increase in farrowings may materialize this winter and spring, resulting in larger supplies by the third quarter of the year, Schneidau notes. The fall buildup probably will be moderate and will not contribute substantially increased hog numbers to this year's hog slaughter. Some weakening in the growth of consumer demand for pork products can be expected this year as consumer buying power is eroded by continued inflation, Schneidau believes. Anticipated increases in beef and poultry supplies will further cut into demand for pork products.

The economist says prices for all barrows and gilts likely will average between $41 and $44 per hundredweight during the first three months of this year.

Larger hog supplies and expected larger beef supplies will exert pressure on hog prices during the second quarter, when they are expected to average between $38 and $41 per hundredweight. Prices are then expected to increase seasonally into the third quarter of 1974.

BREAD WOULD COST A LOT MORE per loaf if all of our wheat were harvested by this early 20th Century method. Even so, latest figures released by New Holland, the farm machinery division of Sperry Rand Corporation, show that the farmer only receives 2.5 cents for wheat in a 23 cent loaf of bread.

Small Grain Yields, Higher Prices

Small grain yields in Indiana last year disappointed Hoosier farmers, but higher prices for these commodities helped ease the pain.

Wheat, oat, barley and rye yields in 1973 dropped below 1972 levels, point out state-federal agricultural statisticians at Purdue University. But, they add, marked price increases per bushel pushed total value of these crops 35 per cent above last year's level.

Wheat acreage harvested, at 703,000 acres, was 15 per cent smaller than in 1972 and the 35-bushel an acre yield was down 13 bushels. Total crop amounted to almost 25 million bushels. Preliminary price of $2.95 a bushel resulted in a 33 per cent increase in value of the crop, the statisticians say.

The state's oat acreage of 261,000 acres was 30 per cent larger than the 1972 total. However, the 48-bushel an acre average was 11 fewer than the previous year. A 31 per cent increase in price per bushel resulted in a 47 per cent increase in the value of the oat production. Barley acreage of 11,000 acres was down 4,000 acres from the 1972 total. At 42 bushels an acre the yield declined one bushel. Farmers received an average of $1.55 a bushel, compared with 97 cents a bushel last year, and the value of the crop was 14 per cent larger than in 1972.

Hoosier farmers seeded 13,000 acres of rye, 1,000 more than in 1972. But yield at 23 bushels an acre was two fewer than in 1972. A 36-cent a bushel increase in price to cent below the record of last August.

The figures provided by USDA officials at the request of newsmen, showed the farm value of retail food rose 1.3 per cent from November to December after declining each month since last August.

Middlemen spreads for transporting, processing and selling food widened 0.8 per cent from November to December.

Although it was a slower gain, it was the fourth consecutive month for an increase in middleman margins.

The figures showed farmers in December received $710 as their share of the retail market basket cost, up $9 from November. Middlemen got $940 last month, a $7 boost.

Since the record last August, the basket's farm value has dropped $129 but the middleman spread has increased $26.

With fertilizer prices up sharply, recycling of animal waste by returning it to the land for growing crops remains sound practice, say Purdue University animal scientists. Follow good soil conservation procedures in distributing the waste at the best time for crop utilization.

Indiana's 1973 Bumper Corn Crop May Be Lower Than Normal In Protein Content

Indiana's 1973 bumper corn crop may be lower than normal in protein content, a state-wide survey by Indiana Cooperative Extension Service personnel indicates. Dr. T.W. Perry, Purdue University animal nutritionist, says that corn samples from throughout the state range in protein content from seven to nine per cent, based on a 12 per cent moisture content. Eight and one-half per cent protein content on a 12 per cent moisture content basis is considered normal.

The survey was prompted by Perry's finding that corn on Purdue animal sciences farms, used for livestock feeding experiments, contained seven per cent protein. He then asked that the Extension personnel cooperate in obtaining samples throughout the state.

Implication of this information to livestock feeders, Perry says, might mean that typically calculated rations might be deficient in protein. He points out that a protein deficiency can result in greatly decreased gains and lowered feed efficiency.

The animal scientist suggests that livestock farmers may want to contact commercial testing laboratories for a check on the protein content of their corn. This is especially true for larger operators, he notes.

Cereal Prices To Stay Strong

Continued price strength in world cereal markets is in prospect for the remainder of the current marketing year ending June 30, a U.S. Department of Agriculture commodity administrator said recently.

Brian K. Meeker, assistant administrator, commodity programs, Foreign Agricultural Service, made the observation in a speech prepared for delivery at the Indiana Farm Management Association meeting opening 1974 Farm Science Days at Purdue University.

The price strength, he noted, is based on supply and demand conditions.

"Prior to the Arab reduction of petroleum supplies to the industrialized West and Japan, I was cautiously optimistic that favorable price strength would persist through the 1974-75 marketing year," Meeker asserted.

"However, a continuation of restricted energy availabilities to industrialized nations may result, at worst, in recessions and a rise in unemployment, or at best, substantially reduced rates of economic growth.

"In either event, demand in major U.S. markets, Japan and Western Europe could be significantly depressed during the 1974-75 marketing year," Meeker said.

"If this occurs concurrently with increased 1974 grain output," he continued, "prices for cereals may significantly weaken from current year levels as early as the next marketing year."

Meeker said, however, "it appears unlikely, even under a return to more normal supply conditions, that cereal prices will decrease to levels that prevailed two years ago."

American farmers, who have enjoyed a favorable cost-price relationship in 1972-73 and 1973-74, enter the coming (1974) production year "with even more uncertainties than are normally the producer's lot," he asserted.

"As well as possible depression of demand in major industrialized markets, there are questions of shortages of important inputs such as fuel and fertilizer and the certainty that the costs of these inputs will increase.

"While beyond 1974, prices of major agricultural commodities will probably average higher than in the past, costs will be going up as well," Meeker said.

Over the longer run, productivity increases, cost control, the right investment and production decisions—those elements that make up good management—are going to be just as important to a farmer's net income position as they have in the past, he told the association members.

"Put bluntly, I do not believe the U.S. agricultural industry entered a new 'golden age' in 1972," Meeker concluded.

HIS HAND

On the ceiling of Sistine Chapel, Michelangelo brings to life some of the most spectacular Old Testament depictions. In one panel portraying the Creation, he shows God reaching out His powerful right hand to Adam, thereby sending out that necessary spark of life which began the history of man. In this familiar scene, the figure of God emanates such power and force that it seems to dominate the rest of the picture. It even diminishes the agony and passion of Adam, the embodiment of longing, searching and lost mankind. Yes, if we were to examine the picture more fully, we would see that not only is God reaching out to Adam, but Adam is also reaching out to touch God. He is virtually straining every fiber in his body to affect this two-way interchange.

Michelangelo said it all with the deft strokes of his brush. All too often we are aware that the huge, powerful, healing hand of God, is reaching out to us without realizing that His hand won't reach all the way. Just like Adam, we must reach out in return. God's open hand is waiting --- where is yours?

You In The Church
The Church Is You
... form a combination for good. Every man, woman and child needs the influence of the church. So, come let us go into the house of the Lord. Let us support her program of service to humanity, be a faithful worker, a daily bible reader and attend services regularly.

Williams Newspaper Features Syndicate
